CITY'S WATER SUPPLY SAFE FROM CHROMIUM CONTAMINATION

After recent reports about the possibility of hexavalent chromium in Central Oregon water systems, city officials are reassuring residents that the city's water supply is safe. The city has met all EPA mandated regulations for public water supply testing. "We test for total chromium and have never had any maximum contamination violation levels for chromium or any other metals, organic compounds, or nonorganic compounds," said Paul Bertagna, Public Works Project Coordinator. All of the city's water reports are sent annually to the customers in their utility bills and are also available for viewing on the City's website www.ci.sisters.or.us.
